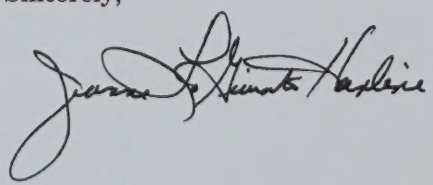
FOREWORD

It is with great pleasure and pride that we present the 2006 Edition of The Official Catholic Directory. The Official Catholic Directory remains the premier resource for all matters relating to the Catholic Church in America. Our coverage is more extensive than ever.



This year's edition includes two special features, a look back at the first year of the Papacy of Benedict XVI and a tribute to the two newest American Cardinals, His Eminence William Joseph Levada and His Eminence Sean Patrick O'Malley. Also notable, this year, the Apostolic Exarchate of United States of America and Canada, Faithful of the Oriental Rite (Armenian), New York was elevated to Eparchy of Our Lady of Nareg in New York (Armenian), USA.

Along with Volume One, we have included The Official Catholic Directory, Part II in your subscription. Published in early fall, this companion contains updates and new listings not present in the main volume, along with the archdioceses and dioceses of the world reprinted with the permission from the Vatican.

With ongoing wars and the ravages of natural disasters, this has been a difficult time for America, the world and the Catholic Church. As always, the Catholic Church stepped up to the forefront in a variety of charity and relief efforts and remains a major force for peace and good in the world.

While we strive to continue our efforts of concise and accurate work, nothing would have been accomplished without the help and cooperation of the many ecclesiastical authorities, diocesan officials, religious and laity who were instrumental in organizing the substantial amounts of information and details needed to publish a successful directory. We would like to thank them all for their tireless work and invaluable assistance.

Sincerely,

Jeanne LoGiurato Hanline

Pope Benedict's First Year

By John Thavis

The new pope called himself, "a simple, humble worker in the vineyard of the Lord", when he addressed the world from the balcony of St. Peter's Basilica April 19, 2005. Upon his election, German Cardinal Joseph Ratzinger took the name Pope Benedict XVI. (CNS photo by Nancy Wiechec)

The evening sun reflected off the travertine pillars of St. Peter's Square, highlighting the faces of some 40,000 young people who had gathered to hear Pope Benedict XVI.

For an hour or more, the youths had waved flags and banners, sung songs and chanted slogans, evoking the enthusiasm of past meetings with the late Pope John Paul II.

But now they listened in silence and rapt attention to the man who sat on a small throne and answered their questions, quietly and thoughtfully, about his own youth.

He told them how he decided to become a priest after witnessing the brutality of the Nazi regime; that at one point he questioned whether he could be celibate his entire life; and that while he knew he could be a good theologian, he wondered whether he had the people skills to be a good pastor.

For Pope Benedict, the encounter, nearly 12 months after his election, marked a defining moment in his emerging papacy. For the better part of an hour, he captivated the crowd by spontaneously fielding questions about God, science, faith and sexuality. And for the first time, he did not hesitate to explore personal chapters of his own life.

The pope, mindful of Pope John Paul's overwhelming popularity and his ability to fire up a crowd, spent much of his first year depersonalizing the papacy. From the beginning, he emphasized that his ministry was not about himself but about the Gospel and how it is lived by contemporary Christians.

He also made it clear that he would not try to imitate his predecessor's sometimes playful rapport with big crowds: the joking, the mock reprimands, the funny faces.

Yet as the months wore on, the academic, white-haired German connected with audiences by developing his own "no-frills" way of communicating — one that favored substance over style.

Quietly and slowly, in more than 200 sermons and speeches, he engaged the faithful and the wider society on the fundamental issues of truth, freedom, faith and human dignity.

To many outsiders, Pope Benedict's first year appeared decidedly low-profile. In part, that's because unrealistic expectations were projected onto the new pope from some Catholic quarters — including hopes for a crackdown on dissent, wholesale replacement of liberal bishops, or a reversal of liturgical reforms.

Instead, the pope eased into his role and took the measure of the tasks that lay ahead. Despite the sometimes frenzied speculation from wings of his church, he appeared in no hurry to launch a sweeping papal program.

At the one-year mark, for example, the Roman Curia "tsunami," long rumored on Catholic blogs, had failed to materialize. Change had come in a few gentle waves, as Pope Benedict slowly began to shrink the number and mandate of selected offices.

Significantly, his first move came in the area of interfaith dialogue. He placed the Pontifical Council for Interreligious Dialogue under the wing of the Pontifical Council for Culture, a move that raised questions about how Pope Benedict intended to engage the non-Christian world, and in particular, Islam.

Some saw it as a downgrading of theological dialogue in favor of cultural cooperation. Others said it reflected the pope's desire for the Vatican to speak with one voice to other religions, instead of communicating in separate categories of faith, diplomacy and social issues.

The pope himself did not explain his decision, nor the similar step of placing the Pontifical Council for Migrants and Travelers under the presidency of the Pontifical Council for Justice and Peace. Behind the scenes, the pope was studying ways to streamline the Vatican's eight major communications departments.

Pope Benedict's transitional year was marked by continuity. He kept practically the entire roster of Vatican officials who had served under Pope John Paul. His only major appointment was naming U.S. Archbishop — now Cardinal — William J. Levada to fill his old job as head of the Congregation for the Doctrine of the Faith.

The new pope promised fewer documents. The much-discussed Vatican instruction barring men with deep-seated homosexual tendencies from the priesthood, although approved by Pope Benedict, was a project inherited from the previous pontificate.

Pope Benedict's only major first-year document was an encyclical that focused on what he called the foundation of the Christian message, "God is love," and its implications for personal and institutional charity.

The encyclical, with its broad themes and invitational style, set the tone for Benedict's teaching ministry. Many expected a heavy dose of doctrinal discipline from this papacy; instead, they saw a pastor at work, one who understands his first task as educating and energizing his flock.

In talk after talk, the pope turned to Scripture far more than dogma. Part of the reason is that he feels Catholics are far too unfamiliar with the Old and New Testaments. When he met with young people in St. Peter's Square, he gave them each a Bible and asked them to, "read it and reread it in a personal dialogue with God."

The pope was concerned that in a culture that has popularized such works as "The Da Vinci Code" and sensationalized the Gnostic gospels, Catholics are woefully ignorant about the early history of their own church.

The core of the pope's message during his first year was that Catholics need to rediscover Christ as the focus of their personal lives, and resist the prevailing tendency to make the individual ego "the only criterion" for their choices.

Time and again, he phrased this as a gentle invitation rather than a stern warning.

"We continually close our doors; we continually want to feel secure and do not want to be disturbed by others and by God" — and yet still Christ will come for his people, the pope said in one early sermon.

At a Rome parish visit in early 2006, he spoke sympathetically about a member of the Jerusalem Sanhedrin who sought out Jesus but hesitated to make, "the leap of faith."

"How many people also in our time are in search of God, in search of Jesus and of his church, in search of divine mercy, and are waiting for a 'sign' that will touch their minds and their hearts," he said.

The sign the church offers is Jesus who died on the cross and rose again to eternal life — the "absolutely sufficient sign" for people of all eras, he said.

As universal pastor, Pope Benedict also saw his role as protective. In the course of an April audience, while describing the role of the bishop, he said the faithful need, "someone who safeguards them in truth and guides them with wise and authoritative discernment."

To the pope, that meant being unafraid to speak out on contemporary social and political issues, including same-sex marriage, abortion, economic justice and political corruption.

He sounded a strong pro-life and pro-family theme from the earliest days of his pontificate, emphasizing that these were not merely Catholic issues. At his installation as bishop of Rome, he explained the "anthropological foundation" of the traditional family and then outlined three sets of connections that give the family meaning: the relationship between God and man, between the body and the spirit, and between personal freedom and the concept of fidelity.

The relationship between God and man quickly became a central theme for Pope Benedict, and he often addressed it in language that was clear-cut and gripping.

"Human life is a relationship ... and the basic relationship is with the Creator, otherwise all relationships are fragile. To choose God, that is the essential thing. A world emptied of God, a world that has forgotten God, loses life and falls into a culture of death," the pope said in early 2006.

Unlike Pope John Paul II, who frequently catalogued social ills during his talks, Pope Benedict generally stuck to spiritual or moral principles. He was less likely than his predecessor to delve into the finer points of immigration policies, social services, the environment or regional tensions.

There were a few striking exceptions, however. One was economic justice. Twice in 2005, the pope made very specific challenges to the world's major powers to live up to their debt reduction and foreign aid promises to developing countries, urging them not to forget Africa.

He also addressed the issue of nuclear weapons, castigating nations that rely on nuclear arms for national defense and saying "the truth of peace" demands a change. In a nuclear war there would be no victors, only victims, he said in his World Peace Day message for 2006.

Pope Benedict, 78 years old at the time of his election, was not expected to be a globetrotter, and his first year included only one foreign trip, to World Youth Day in Cologne, Germany.

During that time, however, the pope was quietly laying the groundwork for four or five more trips planned for his second year: to Poland, Spain, Germany and Turkey in 2006, and perhaps the Holy Land in early 2007.

Europe was very much on his travel calendar and high on his pastoral agenda. Time and again, he zeroed in on what he described as Europe's spiritual fatigue, occasionally rattling the cages and rallying the forces on issues like gay marriage, cohabitation and abortion.

One big question facing Pope Benedict when elected was whether he would be a man of dialogue. In several important areas, the answer was yes — but with some characteristically distinct points of emphasis.

With respect to Islam, the pope has extended Pope John Paul's policy of encouraging moderate Muslim leaders to exert more influence over radical elements. Benedict, however, has been more blunt than his predecessor; meeting with Islamic leaders in Cologne, he called on them to help "turn back the wave of cruel fanaticism" in the world.

Again in his World Peace Day message, he explicitly examined the link between terrorism and religious fanaticism. Fanatical fundamentalism, he said, "disfigures" God and offends human dignity, and has inspired terrorist thinking and activity.

The pope reached out more energetically to Jewish leaders, assuring them of his commitment to dialogue, reflecting on the Holocaust and planning a visit to the Auschwitz death camp in Poland. In an unusual decision, he also suspended indefinitely the planned beatification of an Italian priest accused of anti-Semitism.

On the ecumenical front, Pope Benedict used his first mass to pledge to do everything in his power to promote Christian unity. The months that followed, however, did not feature grand gestures or bold new initiatives. Perhaps the most important accomplishment was arranged behind the scene: scheduling of a late 2006 meeting of the Roman Catholic-Orthodox international dialogue commission, which had not met in six years.

Throughout the year, Pope Benedict focused more on a different kind of dialogue, the one between the Christian faith and modern culture. In particular, he challenged the world of technology and science to acknowledge the place of God in the universe. On more than one occasion, he provocatively affirmed an "intelligent design" in the created world — not as a scientific concept that can be proven by experiment, but as part of the Christian vision.

The new pope found much of his time consumed by management of church affairs, at the Vatican and across the globe.

Marking the 40th anniversary of the close of the Second Vatican Council, the pope strongly defended its documents on interreligious dialogue, religious freedom, ecumenism and Scripture. In a year-end talk to the Roman Curia, he said the council's teachings must be understood as a development of tradition, not as a break with the past.

When he presided over a Synod of Bishops on the Eucharist, he trimmed its schedule by a week and introduced more free discussion, and joined in the debate at times on such topics as the priest shortage and priestly celibacy.

In early 2006, Pope Benedict named 15 new Cardinals, a group that included two Americans: Cardinal Levada, the former archbishop of San Francisco, and Cardinal Seán P. O'Malley of Boston. Before inducting the new prelates, the pope met with all the cardinals for a day of discussions on important themes, including relations with Islam.

He also named a new apostolic nuncio to the United States, a veteran diplomat, Archbishop Pietro Sambi, who had been the Vatican's point man in Israel and Palestine.

Throughout his first year, the pope met with groups of bishops from Africa, Asia, Europe and Latin America who were making their "ad limina" visits to the Vatican. He also welcomed several new ambassadors to the Vatican, including U.S. Ambassador Francis Rooney.

The encounters offered the pope a chance to underline pastoral and social concerns — and he insisted that the church has every right to be a moral voice in society.

In China, the pope oversaw an important breakthrough in mid-2005 when the government and the Vatican were able to agree on a series of bishops' appointments.

Pope Benedict did not continue his predecessor's habit of working lunches with selected guests, but he opened his door to some unexpected visitors. One was Swiss-born Father Hans Kung, a frequent critic of the Vatican whose permission to teach as a Catholic theologian was withdrawn in 1979. The pope and Father Kung knew each other well and, despite their differences, the Vatican described their discussions as "friendly."

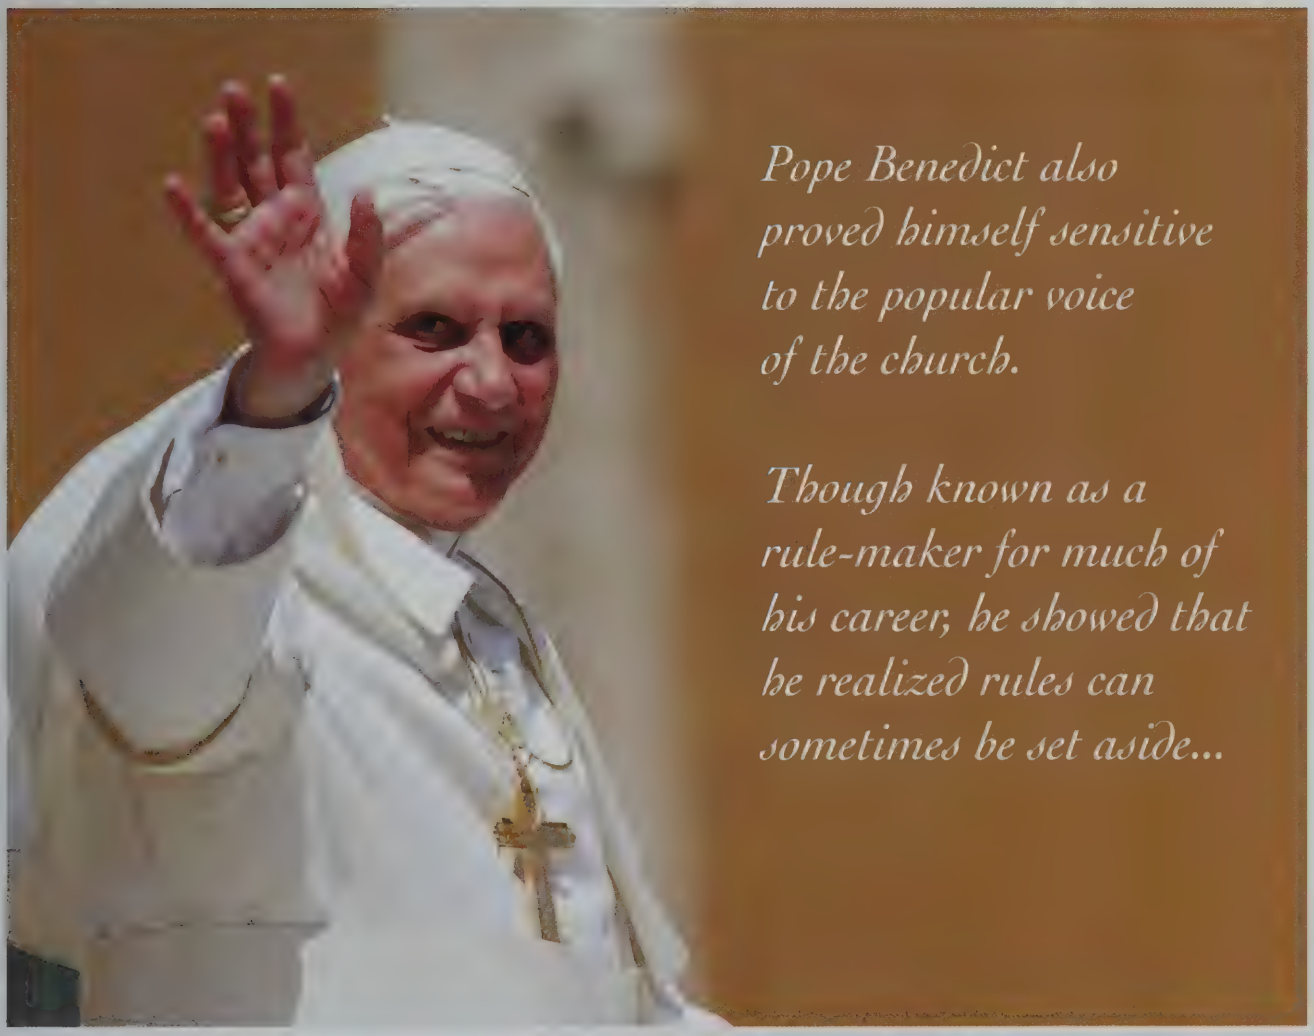
The pope also met with excommunicated Bishop Bernard Fellay, head of the Priestly Society of St. Pius X, and later convened top Vatican officials to discuss the terms of a possible reconciliation with the followers of the late Archbishop Marcel Lefebvre.

The pope's style — deliberate and thoughtful — was seen in the way he took up residence in the Vatican's Apostolic Palace. He commissioned a lengthy remodeling of the papal apartment and waited eight months to move in, along with his 20,000 books.

He was appreciative of those around him, taking the time to meet separately with the often-overlooked groups of employees who serve him every day, including ushers, papal gentlemen, members of the papal antechamber and the Vatican's security force.

Pope Benedict also had an overwhelmingly favorable reception among the more than 4 million pilgrims who come to see him at the Vatican in his inaugural year. After some initial awkwardness, he became accustomed to the big crowds waiting for a touch of his hand, a blessing or just a glimpse of his passing figure.



His easy way of communicating was on display when he met in December with thousands of children who had made their first Communion. To one child who wanted to know why he couldn't see Jesus in the Eucharist, the pope compared it to electricity: we don't see the current, he said, but we see the light it makes.

Pope Benedict also proved himself sensitive to the popular voice of the church. Though known as a rule-maker for much of his career, he showed that he realized rules can sometimes be set aside — most dramatically, when he waived the five-year waiting period for the start of Pope John Paul II's sainthood cause. ◆

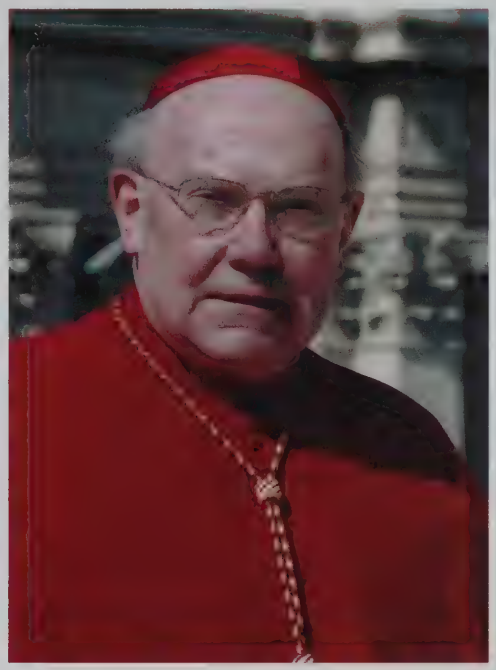
In Celebration of the newly appointed American Cardinals

In this, the 190th edition of The Official Catholic Directory, we are proud to honor two distinguished men recently appointed American Cardinals; William Cardinal Levada and Seán Patrick Cardinal O'Malley.



The elevation of these talented and dedicated prelates clearly demonstrates the present strength of the church in America which they will offer to the global community.

Cardinal Levada has been given the enormous responsibility of filling the post of Prefect of the Congregation for the Doctrine of the Faith, a position formerly held by Pope Benedict XVI. This tremendous honor signifies yet another transition to be met with the promise of growth and the possibility of greatness.

Cardinal O'Malley steps into the demanding role of Cardinal for the Archdiocese of Boston, where he has taken on the responsibility of preserving a rich spiritual tradition, while gently ushering the Archdiocese into the opportunities that lay ahead.

It is our hope, through the profiles that follow, not just to honor Cardinals Levada and O'Malley, but to thank them for all they have accomplished and will continue to achieve.

Cardinal William Joseph Levada

Cardinal William Levada's appointment by Pope Benedict XVI as Prefect of the Congregation for the Doctrine of the Faith was an unprecedented honor for an American prelate.

Stepping into the position formerly held by the Pope himself, the cardinal has the enormous responsibility of serving as the chief promoter of the doctrines of the Church. The position of Prefect of the Congregation for the Doctrine of the Faith is the second most powerful at the Vatican.

Cardinal Levada joins fellow Americans James Francis Cardinal Stafford (Major Penitentiary) and Edmund Cardinal Szoka (Governor of Vatican City and President of the Pontifical Commission for Vatican City State) as key figures in the Roman Curia.

Cardinal Levada's journey to Rome began in California, and has seen him shuttling back and forth between the West Coast and Rome for nearly 50 years.

Born on June 15, 1936, he spent his formative years in Long Beach, California where he attended elementary school and graduated from St. Anthony's High School. Upon graduation, he studied theology at the Seminary College in the Archdiocese of Los Angeles.

In 1958, the cardinal made his first of many excursions to Rome, studying at the North American College and at the Pontifical Gregorian University.

He was ordained a priest on December 20, 1961, immediately returning to Los Angeles, where he would spend the next five years doing parish work, teaching high school and working with the college campus ministry.

In the fall of 1967, Father Levada returned to Rome, where he pursued his doctoral degree in theology at the Gregorian University. While there, he taught a seminar at the North American College for the undergraduate theology students. Father Levada earned the degree Doctor of Sacred Theology in June of 1971.

In the fall of 1970, he began teaching theology at St. John's Seminary School of Theology in Camarillo, California. During this time he was named the first Director of Continuing Education for the Clergy in the Archdiocese of Los Angeles.

In the fall of 1976, he was named to his first Vatican appointment, working for the Congregation for the Doctrine of the Faith. In his six years there, Levada served under three popes, Pope Paul VI, Pope John Paul I and Pope John Paul II.

He also worked directly under then Cardinal Joseph Ratzinger. On May 15, 1980, he was given the title of Chaplain of His Holiness, Pope John Paul II. Besides his Vatican duties, he also taught at the Pontifical Gregorian University.

In 1982, he returned to his California home. His first assignment was as Executive Director of the California Catholic Conference of Bishops in Sacramento. During his two-year tenure, he was named Auxiliary Bishop of Los Angeles and was ordained a bishop on May 12, 1983.

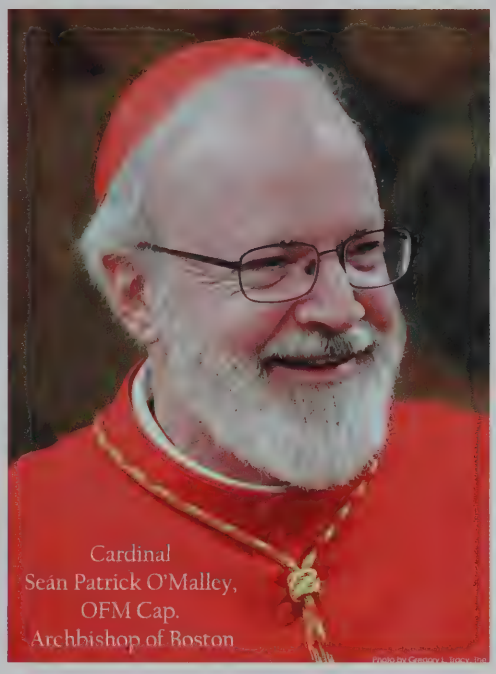
On July 1, 1986, he was appointed eighth Archbishop of Portland in Oregon. In his 10 years in Oregon, Archbishop Levada was very involved in a number of key issues, including education, immigration, the environment, euthanasia and the rights of the unborn.

He was also the only American Bishop on the Editorial Committee of the Holy See's Commission for the new Catechism of the Catholic Church.

On August 17, 1995, Archbishop Levada was appointed Coadjutor Archbishop of San Francisco and succeeded as Archbishop of San Francisco on December 27, 1995.

During his tenure as Archbishop of San Francisco he became the Bishop Co-Chair of the Anglican-Roman Catholic dialogue in the United States and was also appointed as Chairman of the United States Conference of Catholic Bishops Committee on Doctrine.

On May 13, 2005, Pope Benedict XVI appointed Archbishop Levada to succeed him as Prefect of the Congregation for the Doctrine of the Faith.



He resigned as Archbishop of San Francisco effective August 17, 2005. On February 22, 2006, Pope Benedict announced that the archbishop was to be elevated to the College of Cardinals and, on March 24, he was named the Cardinal Deacon of the Diaconia S. Mariae in Domnica.

Cardinal Seán Patrick O'Malley, OFM Cap

Ninth Bishop and Sixth Archbishop of Boston

Patrick O'Malley was born in Lakewood, Ohio, June 29, 1944, the son of the late Theodore and Mary Louise (Reidy) O'Malley. He attended St. Gabriel and Sacred Heart Elementary Schools in Pennsylvania and St. Fidelis High School, a high school seminary conducted by the Capuchin fathers, in Butler, Penn.

He prepared for the priesthood at St. Fidelis Seminary, also in Butler, and at the Capuchin College in Washington, D.C. He was professed as a Capuchin on July 14, 1965 and given the religious name Seán. The Capuchins are priests and brothers members of a religious order dedicated to following in the tradition of St. Francis of Assisi.

Cardinal
Seán Patrick O'Malley,
OFM Cap.
Archbishop of Boston

On August 29, 1970, Bishop John B. McDowell, auxiliary of Pittsburgh, ordained him a priest of the Order of Friars Minor Capuchin. He then went on to earn a master's degree in religious education and a doctorate in Spanish and Portuguese Literature, both at the Catholic University of America in Washington, D.C., where he also taught from 1969 to 1973.

In 1973 he began serving as Executive Director of Centro Catolico Hispano in the Washington archdiocese before being named Episcopal Vicar for the Hispanic, Portuguese and Haitian communities and Executive Director of the archdiocesan Office of Social Ministry in 1978.

Pope John Paul II appointed him as coadjutor bishop of the diocese of St. Thomas in the Virgin Islands on May 30, 1984. Most Rev. Edward J. Harper, CSSR, Bishop of Saint Thomas, assisted by Most Rev. James A. Hickey, Archbishop of Washington, and Most Rev. Eugene A. Marino, SSJ, Titular Bishop of Walla Walla and Auxiliary of Washington ordained him a bishop on Aug. 2, 1984 at the Cathedral of Saints Peter and Paul, St. Thomas, Virgin Islands. He became the diocesan bishop of the Caribbean diocese on October 16, 1985.

On June 16, 1992 Pope John Paul II announced the appointment of Bishop O'Malley as the sixth bishop of Fall River. He was installed at the Cathedral of St. Mary on August 11, 1992, the feast day of a Franciscan, St. Clare.

As bishop of Fall River, he was involved with the wider community both within the diocese itself and in the commonwealth. He was active in the work of the Massachusetts Catholic Conference, especially with Pro-Life issues.

Bishop Seán Patrick O'Malley, OFM Cap., was appointed by Pope John Paul II on September 3, 2002 to be the fourth bishop of the Diocese of Palm Beach. In a Eucharistic Liturgy of Installation at the Cathedral of St. Ignatius Loyola in Palm Beach Gardens on October 19, 2002, Bishop O'Malley became the spiritual leader of a Catholic population of more than 250,000 Catholics worshipping in 53 parishes and missions.

Cardinal O'Malley is an active member of the United States Catholic Conference of Catholic Bishops. In November 2000 he was elected by his brother bishops to serve as chairman of their Committee on Consecrated Life.

Throughout his years as bishop, he has served on the numerous other committees, including Missions (of which he was chairman), the Administrative Board, Priestly Formation, Hispanic Affairs, Migration, and the Church in Latin America as well as on the board of directors for Catholic Relief Services and the Association for the Development of the Catholic University of Portugal.

In 1998 he was appointed by the Holy Father to the Special Assembly for Oceania of the Synod of Bishops, which was held at the Vatican from November 22 to December 12. He has also served as Apostolic Visitator for several seminaries in Central America and the Caribbean.

On July 1, 2003 Pope John Paul II named him the ninth bishop and sixth metropolitan archbishop of Boston. He was installed in the metropolitan cathedral of the Holy Cross on July 30, 2003.

He immediately set about the process of rebuilding the archdiocese by meeting with victims of clergy sexual abuse, settling new and pending court cases, and beginning a process of reconfiguring and consolidating the parishes. The process is actually continuing, as in 2006 a comprehensive study of the Catholic schools unfolds and the archdiocese releases a wide reaching financial report in early 2006.

Pope Benedict XVI named Archbishop O'Malley to the College of Cardinals and bestowed on him the red biretta at the consistory of March 24, 2006. At the same time he entrusted to him the titular church of Santa Maria della vittoria, a notable baroque church in Rome.

The Seal of P.J. Kenedy & Sons
The Official Catholic Directory

SIGNIFICANCE:

The shield is the central part of a heraldic device, which is more commonly known as a coat of arms. If that shield is enclosed within a body of text, or other type of surrounding configuration, the device becomes know as a seal, yet it is the shield portion of the design that is the most important, and that which is described technically as the blazon. As the design is examined, it must be remembered that by heraldic tradition the design is described (blazoned) as if being done by the bearer with the shield being worn on the arm. Therefore, the terms dexter and sinister will be reversed as the design is viewed from the front.

The shield of the seal for The Official Catholic Directory has been designed to reflect the character and heritage of this publication of P.J. Kenedy & Sons.

The shield is in two major portions. The right half (sinister impalement) is composed of the blue field on which are seen a silver tree, two candles (in silver or white) in their candleholders (of gold or yellow) and an open book, edged in gold and with a red bookmark. These symbols have been used over the years as the sign of the P.J. Kenedy and Sons publishing organization. These are the traditional symbols of knowledge and learning, so appropriate to a publisher.

The other side of the shield (the dexter impalement) is composed of a silver (white) field on which is seen a red cross, throughout, and a gold eagle. These symbols, combined with the field of the sinister impalement, are represented in the color of the flag of the United States of America and the eagle, the symbol of the United States. The cross represents Christianity and all of this combines to signify that The Official Catholic Directory annually reports on the Catholic Church in the United States.

The shield is surrounded by a laurel wreath of excellence and is enclosed within the legend that states the name of the company, the name of the publication and date (1817) of its founding.

From feeding the starving in Haiti to building houses in Nicaragua, Food For The Poor reaches out to the physically impoverished, restoring hope and faith in God's mercy and goodness.

In Haiti, a hungry child's cries for food are answered... in Jamaica, a desperate mother is given a new, safe house to shelter her children... in Guatemala, a child lingering on the brink of death receives love, nourishment and healing from the nuns who run the clinic there.

We strive always to heed Christ's Gospel mandate to care for the poor. Desperately needed aid is distributed through the clergy, churches and other missionaries, an expression of God's love which infuses new hope in the lives of the needy.

Food For The Poor is the third largest international relief organization based in the U.S.* A 4% operating ratio in 2005 allowed 96% of all donations to go directly to programs that help the poor. By supplying materials that are specifically requested by clergy already in place in Latin America and the Caribbean, we serve poverty-stricken areas in the most efficient and responsible manner.

Food For The Poor works with Catholic churches, here and abroad, in answering God's request to care for the destitute. Together we continue to raise up our needy brothers and sisters in the Lord's name.

The Chronicle of Philanthropy, 2005*

Pope Benedict XVI, shown above with Food For The Poor representative Bishop Emeritus Paul Boyle of Mandeville, Jamaica, blessed and encouraged the organization's work.

WHAT HAPPENS WHEN NEARLY

1.7 MILLION MEN BELIEVE THEY CAN MAKE A DIFFERENCE?

THEY ACTUALLY DO.

We are the Knights of Columbus. But we are more than just nearly 1.7 million members worldwide. We are mentors, leaders, and humanitarians. Last year, we volunteered over 60 million hours to help the needy and better our communities. We raised over $128 million for charities and local churches. At the same time, our approximately $50 billion life insurance program* provides financial security to our members and their families. We are able to do these things not only because we believe we can make a difference, but because we know we can.

How Can I be a Minister of Life...

...to preach sensitively and challenge effectively, in the context of Sacred Scripture, and of a consistent ethic of life?

Priests for Life exists to help you do precisely this!

Fr. Frank Pavone is a priest of the Diocese of Amarillo, Texas and has served as an Official of the Pontifical Council for the Family at the Vatican, which coordinates pro-life activities throughout the world. With the permission of his Ordinary, he has led the Priests for Life movement since 1993.

"I remember when I first came to know Priests for Life and now see to my great satisfaction, how the association has grown. I am delighted to see that Priests for Life is associated with so many dioceses and that the bishops are giving you the support you need in this vital ministry. Let us hope that this support increases as well as the priest members. May the Lord and our Blessed Mother bless Priests for Life."

His Eminence Alfonso Cardinal Lopez-Trujillo
President, Pontifical Council for the Family

"I have always noted that your own talks are pithy, very much to the point, very easy to listen to and extremely powerful. I am in complete agreement with everything that His Eminence says about you in his letter of endorsement. I can only say that he chose wisely and well when he selected Father Frank Pavone to be his ambassador around the country in promotion of the pro-life message and in particular, "Priests for Life."

Rambusch Church Lighting Systems Make Interiors Come To Life

A fresh look for this 80-year-old cathedral was achieved by the removal of all pendant fixtures. A Rambusch lighting system for reading light, architectural light, and accent light is organized by a 16 pre-set push button system. Rambusch was also entrusted with creating a new design for a Pascal candlestick and a high altar set. Respecting history, the new design incorporated elements from the original smaller set. The transformation was carried out in our art metal workshops. Now of proper scale, the bronze candlesticks have a skillfully applied hand rubbed glazed finish. New artwork includes a life size poly-chromed hand carved contemporary image of Mary and the Christ child.

Early in 1855, His Holiness Pope Pius IX indicated to American bishops his interest in seeing a national seminary in Rome for formation of candidates from the United States. In 1859, on the feast of the Immaculate Conception, the seminary opened with twelve candidates.

With that modest beginning, the Pontifical North American College now serves as a home away from home for more than 300 seminarians and priests in various stages of formation, graduate study or the three month sabbatical program.

The prospect of living and studying in Rome offers an environment replete with unique opportunities that enhance the personal preparation of someone aspiring to the priesthood.

Those pursuing the priestly vocation who may wish to be formed here at the heart of the Church should speak with the vocation director in their own diocese.

Rambusch Craftsmen Enhance Fifty-Year-Old Cathedral Space

The 30×23 foot graded gold mosaic sheathing the rear wall of the sanctuary creates a subtle, vibrant, luminous environment for celebration of the Eucharist. Rambusch's design was masterfully translated into mosaic by our allied artisans in Italy. Multi-arm period brass chandeliers were restored in our workshops. The entire church glows under the new recessed lighting system.

Rambusch Craftsmen Create Serene Spaces For Worship And Meditation

According to the pastor, the parish literally caught its collective breath when the new Rambusch lighting system was activated on Easter. The 12 preset, push button scenes were especially arranged for the needs of the parish. In addition to the custom lighting system, Rambusch designed the entire interior new color scheme, Presider's chair, and remodeled the marble baptismal font. A new carved statue of Saint John Fisher, patron of the diocese, now faces that of Saint Thomas More, both martyred in Henry VIII's England. The remodeling of the flat top tabernacle by the addition of the pyramidal shape, makes a new profile which is enhanced by the unusual canopy above. The mosaic paliotto and marble ambo are inspired by a fifth century Byzantine mosaic from the Church of the Multiplication of the Loaves and the Fishes, in Tabgha, Israel.

Pastor: Rev. Lee Chase, S.T.L.

THE OFFICIAL CATHOLIC DIRECTORY GLOSSARY

Abbot

The superior of an autonomous community of men religious. He has general and sacramental jurisdiction over his community. The head of a prominent monastery or a congregation consisting of several monasteries is an archabbot.

Advocate

An ecclesiastical advocate is someone approved by Church authority to safeguard the rights of a party in a canonical process by arguments regarding the law and the facts of the case. [Cf. c. 1481 and CLSA Comm., p. 967]

Apostolate

Apostolate is the mission of Christ and participation in it. Its object is to bring Christ to others, its goal is the greater glory of God, its scope is universal. The work is carried out by every human agency by which the life of grace may be given or increased in the soul. A mandate from the Church is essential to the Catholic apostolate.

Archbishop

A bishop of a main or metropolitan diocese in an ecclesiastical province. The term is equivalent to metropolitan in the Western Church. It may also be granted to other ordinaries and non-residential bishops, and to the ordinary of a diocese outside a province.

Auditor

An official of a diocesan court, who gathers evidence and testimony and draws up a record of an ecclesiastical case.

Bishop

A bishop, by divine institution, carries on the work of the apostles. By reason of episcopal consecration, he shares in the triple apostolic function of teacher of doctrine, priest of sacred worship, and minister of church government. Bishops are responsible for the pastoral care of their dioceses. In addition, bishops have a responsibility to act in council to guide the Church. The term eparch is used in Eastern-rite churches.

The bishop to whom a particular or local church is entrusted is called a diocesan bishop or a residential bishop. Some other bishops receive Titular Sees over which they exercise no pastoral authority.
When the pastoral needs of a diocese or archdiocese warrant, an auxiliary bishop may be assigned to aid the residential bishop in governing his diocese. An auxiliary bishop is assigned when the residential bishop needs assistance in carrying out his duties because of ill health, advanced age, or amount of work. An auxiliary bishop does not have the right of succession within his diocese.

In special circumstances, such as the advanced age or ill health of a diocesan bishop, a coadjutator bishop may be appointed to assist the principal bishop of a diocese. Coadjutator bishops have the right of succession in the diocese of their appointment from the time the See becomes vacant upon the death or retirement of its bishop.

Brother

A man who is a member of a religious order, but is not ordained or studying for the priesthood.

Cana Conference

A Catholic family movement, originally designed to aid married couples and families in their spiritual and interpersonal relationships. The program is now divided into Pre-Cana, for couples engaged to be married, and Cana Conferences, programs for married people.

Catholic Fraternal Organizations

National Catholic fraternal organizations operating in the United States include the Knights of Columbus and the Knights of Peter Claver. These organizations are not included in the USCCB group tax exemption ruling.

Censor Librorum

A theologian empowered by a bishop to judge a book's soundness in regard to Church teaching before publication.

Chancellor

The office of the chancellor (or the chancery) evolved from the practice in the early Church of appointing an official to sign and preserve the letters of the bishop. The first function of the chancellor in the present day is gathering, arranging, and safeguarding the acts of the diocesan curia. Dispensations and other official documents also originate from the chancery. In many dioceses, the chancellor continues to exercise ordinary jurisdiction as delegated by the diocesan bishop. He or she may be assisted by a separate official, the vice-chancellor.

Chapter

The general chapter of a religious order is an assembly of elected or appointed members and provincials. General chapters are convened for the election of officers, amendments to the constitution, and discussion and legislation of matters of concern to members and the order as a whole.

A provincial chapter conducts elections and handles legislation on a provincial level. The assembly is comprised of superiors and representatives of the religious.
A chapter of canons is a group of diocesan priests, appointed by the bishop of a diocese, with assigned authority or responsibilities.

College of Cardinals

The College of Cardinals is made up of the cardinals of the Church, who advise the Pope, assist in the central administration of the Church, head the various curial offices and congregations, administer the Holy See during a vacancy, and elect a new Pope. There are three ranks in the College of Cardinals, corresponding to the historical origins of cardinals in the Roman Catholic Church. All cardinals are bishops, but their rank within the College of Cardinals is characterized by one of the hierarchical ranks of bishop, priest, or deacon. Cardinals are given honorary title to churches in the city of Rome. [CF. c. 350; CLSA Comm., pp. 288-289]

1. Cardinal Bishops

There are two types of Cardinal Bishops: 1) those appointed by the Pope as titular bishops to one of the six suburban dioceses of Rome, and 2) Eastern-rite Patriarchs who are heads of Sees with apostolic origins that have been assigned to the College of Cardinals.

2. Cardinal Priests

Heads of Sees outside the city of Rome are assigned a "titular church," one of the churches in Rome. They have no pastoral authority over their titular church.

3. Cardinal Deacons

Cardinals of diaconal rank are bishops without Sees who head the various departments, offices, congregations, committees, and the Secretariat of State of the Roman Curia.

Confraternity of Christian Doctrine [CCD]

A lay organization established for religious education throughout a person's entire life. The term is currently used to describe Catholic parish-based religious education of children from kindergarten through high school. At the diocesan level, the offices are now more commonly known as offices of religious education or Christian formation. Nationally, the confraternity's religious education component has been taken over by the USCCB's Department of Education. It still exists as a separate entity under the USCCB Administrative Board, with responsibility for licensing religious and spiritual literature.

Consolidated School

The term, as used in the Directory, may refer to a school that takes students from more than one parish, or a school that was formed by the consolidation of two or three other schools. In both cases, it is a means of keeping a Catholic school in a given area open by taking students from the surrounding areas, regardless of parish boundaries.

Convent

In common usage, the term refers to a house of women religious. Originally, it referred to a building where members of religious institutes lived, and was not restricted to communities of women.

Cursillo

The cursillo de cristianidad, or "little course in Christianity," is a three-day program for achieving spiritual renewal or spiritual awakening. It seeks to convey a new sense of individual and organized apostolic action. The program, conducted by priests and laypeople, consists of a three-day weekend focused on prayer, study, and Christian action, and a follow-up program known as the post-cursillo.

Deacons

The diaconate is the first order or grade in ordained ministry. Its origins are in early apostolic times, when deacons preached and baptized under the direction of the presbyters or bishops. Any man who is to be ordained to the priesthood must first be ordained as a transitional deacon. Deacons serve in the ministry of liturgy, of the word, and of charity.

In 1967, Pope Paul VI reinstituted the Permanent Diaconate for men who do not plan to become ordained priests. Although men ordained as permanent deacons are sometimes referred to as "married deacons," the permanent diaconate is open to both married and unmarried men, with the understanding that after ordination, they may not marry even after the death of a spouse. Under the authority of the diocesan bishop, they perform the same functions as the transitional deacons while, at the same time, retaining their roles in society as family and business men.

Dean/Vicar Forane

The title of a priest appointed by the bishop to aid him in administering the parishes in a certain vicinity, called a "deanery," or "vicariates forane." The function of a dean, or vicar forane, involves promotion, coordination, and supervision of the common pastoral activity within the deanery or vicariate.

Defender of the Bond

A member of a diocesan tribunal, either a cleric or a lay person, holding a graduate degree in canon law, who is appointed by the diocesan bishop for cases concerning the nullity of sacred ordination or the nullity or dissolution of the marriage bond. The defender of the bond is responsible for a review of the evidence, scrutiny of the briefs, examination of witnesses, and maintenance of proper procedures during the trial. The defender also deals with some situations concerning the content of the litigation rather than the legal procedures.

Diocesan Consultors

An advisory council of diocesan priests, as appointed by a diocesan bishop, that assists in the administrative affairs of the diocese.

Diocesan Curia

The personnel and offices assisting the diocesan bishop in directing the pastoral activity, administration, and the exercise of judicial power of his diocese. The curia includes among its officers laity and religious as well as clergy. Principal officers of a diocesan curia are the vicar general of the diocese, the chancellor, officials of the diocesan tribunal, examiners, consultors, auditors, the promoter of justice and the defender of the bond.

Diocese

The standard term for a territorial division of the Church, entrusted to a bishop who rules in his own name as local ordinary, and not as a delegate of another. The chief diocese of a province is an archdiocese. It is headed by an archbishop. A diocese is usually limited to a definite territory so that it comprises all the faithful who inhabit that territory. [Cf. cc. 369 and 372, #1] In Eastern-rite churches, the term eparchy is used.

Eastern-rite [Oriental] Church

The term used to describe the Catholic churches which developed in Eastern Europe, Asia, and Africa. The Eastern-rite churches have their own distinctive liturgical and organizational systems. Each is considered equal to the Latin rite within the Church.

Eastern Catholic Association

The eastern catholic association is the association of all Eastern Catholic Bishops in the United States. All Eastern Catholic Bishops, diocesan bishops (and their equivalent in law) and auxiliaries are members. The Association represents the Armenian, Chaldean, Maronite Melikite, Romanian, Ruthenian and Ukrainian Churches. The Syriac, Syro-Malabar and Russian churches are also represented but without a bishop member since they are presently have no established hierarchy in the United States.

Ecumenism/Ecumenical Movement

A movement for spiritual understanding and unity among Christians and their churches. The term is also extended to apply to efforts toward greater understanding and cooperation between Christians and members of other faiths.

Exarch/Exarchy

A church jurisdiction, similar to a diocese, established for Eastern-rite Catholics living outside their native land. The head of an exarchy, usually a bishop, is an exarch.

Hierarchy

In general, the term refers to the ordered body of clergy, divided into bishops, priests, and deacons. In Catholic practice, the term refers to the bishops of the world or of a particular region.

Holy Name Society

A lay organization which seeks to aid its members in living a genuinely Christian life. The society organizes retreats and other spiritual and devotional exercises.

Holy See

The term refers to the diocese of Rome. Used in reference to the governance of the Church, it refers to the Pontiff, the Roman Curia, and the Sacred College.

Legion of Mary

A lay organization established to assist the clergy in the sanctification of its members' souls, and the spread of the Christian faith and spiritual service to others. Members participate in almost every form of social service and Catholic action, including evangelization. The organization was founded in 1921.

Metropolitan

A mission, or quasi-parish, is a parish which has not been established because it lacks one or more of the following qualifications: a resident pastor; necessary financial resources; territorial boundaries; or a natural grouping by way of rite, nationality, or language. Missions are attached to some parishes under the care of their pastors.

Moderator of the Curia

A bishop or priest, appointed by the diocesan bishop, who is concerned primarily with administrative matters and with supervising those working in the curia.

Monastery

An autonomous community house of a religious order, which may or may not be a monastic order. The term is used more specifically to refer to a community house of men religious or women religious in which they lead a contemplative life separate from the world.

Monsignor

An honorary ecclesiastical title granted by the Pope to some diocesan priests. In the United States, the title is given to the vicar general of a diocese. In Europe, the title is also given to bishops.

The organization was founded in 1928 and in 1950, it received Vatican approval as a secular institution. In 1982, it was designated a personal prelature, the Prelature of the Holy Cross and Opus Dei. Members are not members of a religious order, do not take vows, and do not live in community.

Ordinary

Diocesan bishops, religious superiors, and certain other diocesan authorities with jurisdiction over the clergy in a specific geographical area, or the members of a religious order.

Ordination/Ordain

The sacramental rite by which a "sacred order" is conferred (diaconate, priesthood, episcopacy).

Papal Representatives

There are three types of representatives of the Roman Pontiff:

1) those who represent him to particular churches and civil government;

2) those who represent him to particular churches;

3) those who represent him in international organizations or at various conferences and meetings. [Cf. c. 363; CLSA Comm., p. 302]

1. Apostolic Nuncio

In the United States, the papal representative is sent by the Pope to both the local church and to the government. His title is Apostolic Nuncio.

2. Legate

An individual appointed by the Pope to be his personal representative to a nation, international conference, or local church. The legate may be chosen from the local clergy of a country.

3. Permanent Observer to the United Nations

The Apostolic See maintains permanent legates below the ambassadorial level to several world organizations. Since the papal representative does not enjoy the right to vote within the organization, his title at the United Nations is that of Observer.

Parish

A specific community of the Christian faithful within a diocese, which has its own church building, under the authority of a pastor who is responsible for providing them with ministerial service. Most parishes are formed on a geographic basis, but they may be formed along national or ethnic lines.

Parish Coordinator

A deacon, religious, or lay person who is responsible for the pastoral care of parish. The parish coordinator is in charge of the day-to-day life of the parish in the areas of worship, education, pastoral service and administration.

Pastor

A priest in charge of a parish or congregation. He is responsible for administering the sacraments, instructing the congregation in the doctrine of the Church, and other services to the people of the parish.

Pastoral Associate

A member of the laity who is part of a parish ministry team.

Pastoral Council

A consultative body which the pastor or bishop consults concerning the pastoral activity within the diocese. Its members include laity, religious, and clergy. The pastoral council's purpose is to study practical situations, difficulties and problems, and make concrete recommendations and proposals to the diocesan bishop. The pastoral council is always subject to the final authority of the pastor or bishop.

Patriarch

The Pope is the traditional "Patriarch of the West." All other bishops in the Latin Rite, even those with the honorary title of "Patriarch," are subject to him. Similarly, patriarchs within nations have only an honorary title unless special provisions are made otherwise. Eastern-rite Patriarchs are subject to the Pope while serving as heads of the faithful belonging to their rites throughout the world.

Personal Prelature

In addition to the territorial arrangement of the Church into particular or local churches or dioceses, canon law also provides for non-territorial areas of religious jurisdiction, incorporating secular clergy and deacons. Membership is also open to lay persons. These prelatures are established to meet specific pastoral or missionary needs at the regional, national, or international level without infringing on the rights of the local bishops. A prelature is presided over by a personal prelate, who is an ordinary with the right to establish seminaries and ordain priests as members of the prelature.

Canon law also allows for laity to be associated in the works of prelatures without being withdrawn from the jurisdiction of their own diocesan bishop.

Personal prelatures are jurisdictional structures of a secular type which are established by the Holy See as an instrument within the hierarchical pastoral work of the Church to carry out special pastoral or missionary tasks. Personal prelatures are based on the principle of insertion into the local Church. In this they differ essentially from the personal dioceses, such as those constituted for the faithful of a particular rite, which are based on the principle of independence or autonomy in regard to local Churches.

Vatican II provided for setting up personal prelatures (see Decree, Presbyterorum ordinis, no. 10). Additional norms were established in subsequent pontifical legislation (see Motu proprio Ecclesiae Sanctae no. 1, no. 4, August 6, 1966 and the Apostolic Constitution Regimini Ecclesiae Universae, no. 49, no. 1, Aug. 15, 1967). General legislation concerning personal prelatures is contained in canons 294 to 297 of the 1983 Code of Canon Law.

Personal prelatures are to be established by the Holy See after hearing the views of the respective Episcopal Conferences (can. 294). They are governed by a Prelate according to statutes given by the Holy See. The Prelate is their proper Ordinary, who may incardinate priests and must look after their spiritual and temporal welfare (can. 295). Lay people can dedicate themselves by means of a contractual agreement, to the apostolic activities of the prelature; the statutes are to specify the manner of this organic cooperation (can. 296). And the statutes are also to determine the relations of the prelature with the Ordinaries of the places in which the prelature works, with the prior consent of the Ordinaries (can. 297).

Presbyteral Council

Also known as the priests' council, the presbyteral council is the principal consultative body mandated by the Code of Canon Law to advise the diocesan bishop in matters of pastoral governance. It consists of bishops and priests serving the diocese.

Propagation of the Faith

An organization, headquartered in Rome, which distributes aid to Catholic missions and organizes the work of missionaries all over the world. The organization has responsibility for fostering missionary vocations, assigning missionaries to field work, defining ecclesiastical boundaries and assigning clergy to them, and encouraging training and installation of native-born clergy.

Promoter of Justice

A cleric or lay person, holding a graduate degree in canon law, who is appointed by the diocesan bishop to serve in the role of a "prosecuting attorney" in trials of crimes against church law and of other judicial litigations in the diocese. A promoter of justice may be appointed for a specific case by the bishop.

Province

A defined geographic area containing an archdiocese, or Metropolitan See, and at least one diocese, or Suffragen See. The archbishop of the archdiocese has no direct powers over the Suffragen Sees, but does have limited advisory and appellate authority and obligations. The term also refers to a territorial grouping of particular churches or communities, or a territory of a religious order.

Provincial

The superior of the communities of a religious order that constitute a province.

Provincial Council

An assembly of the bishops of an ecclesiastical province, called by the metropolitan archbishop. The term is also used in reference to the provincial superior of a province, along with his or her chief advisors.

Receptions into the Church

Can take two forms: baptism of those not previously validly baptized, or "reception into full communion" with the Church for those who have already been baptized, in which case a profession of faith affects the reception.

Religious Education Department

The ECA has established the ECDD-The Eastern Conference of Diocesan Directors of Religious Education which oversees, through God With Us Publications, all publications of catechtical materials published by it and used in Eastern Catholic Churches, mainly of Byzantine tradition.

Religious Priest/Diocesan Priest

Religious, or regular, priests are those who are professed members of a religious order or institute. Religious clergy live according to the rule of their respective orders. In pastoral ministry, they are under the jurisdiction of their local bishop, as well as the superiors of their order. Diocesan, or secular, priests are under the direction of their local bishop. They commit to serving their congregations and other institutions.

Retreat

A period of time spent in meditation and religious exercise. Retreats may take various forms, from traditional closed forms, to open retreats, which do not disengage the participants from day-to-day life. Both clergy and lay people of all ages participate in retreats. Houses and centers providing facilities for retreats are retreat houses.

Rite of Christian Initiation of Adults [RCIA]

The liturgical book containing the norms and rituals of the Catholic Church for people who wish to join the Church. Part of the book is intended for baptized Christians who wish to become Catholics. The term is used in a general sense to refer to the process of entering the Catholic Church.

Roman Curia

The official collective name for the administrative agencies and courts, and their officials, who assist the Pope in governing the Church. Members are appointed and granted authority by the Pope.

St. Vincent DePaul Society

Originally known as the Conference of Charity, this is an organization of lay people who serve the poor through spiritual and material works of mercy. The society operates stores, rehabilitation workshops, food centers, shelters, criminal justice and other programs.

Scholastic

A member of a religious order who has completed his novitiate, but has not yet been ordained.

Scholastic Teaching

Usually refers to Scholastic Philosophy, which is the basis for much Catholic Theology. It comes from the canonical "schools" of the 12th-13th centuries, St. Thomas Aquinas, St. Bonaventure, St. Albert the Great, etc., who developed "scholasticism" based mainly on Aristotle. It is the semi-official philosophy of the Church.

Secular Institute

Canonically erected institute of consecrated life for single laity and clerics who strive for the perfection of charity and work for the sanctification of the world while remaining in a lifestyle within the world.

See

The word is taken from the Latin word "sedes" ("seat"), and is used to denote a diocese or ecclesiastical district. The term Holy See is reserved to the diocese of Rome whose bishop is the Pope. U.S. Territorial Sees are dioceses located on territory of the United States of America, but are members of episcopal confereences other than the United States Conference of Catholic Bishops.

Seminary

An educational institution for men preparing for Holy Orders. The term originates from the time of St. Augustine, when those preparing for the priesthood were educated in the "cathedral school." During the Middle Ages, the clergy were educated in a university setting where faculties of philosophy, theology, and canon law existed. Eventually individual dioceses or provinces came to establish their own schools for educating their clerical students. Traditional seminaries date from the Council of Trent in the 16th century.

A school for the spiritual, academic, and pastoral education and formation of priesthood candidates is known as a major seminary in which the focus is on philosophical and theological education. To prepare for entrance into a major seminary, a period of study is set aside for the required courses in the humanities and the sciences in institutions called minor seminaries.

Serra Club

Local units of Serra International, an organization which promotes vocations to the priesthood and religious life, and offers instruction to lay leaders.

Sister

The term, in the strictest sense, refers to women religious who belong to institutes which have professed simple vows. However, in everyday usage, the term is used for any woman religious.

Sodality

A group of laity established for the promotion of Christian life and worship, or some other religious purpose.

Special Centers for Social Services

This would seem to overlap with Specialized Homes. Some of the categorization is fairly arbitrary. Catholic Charities might have its own proper distinctions for government or private funding purposes.

Specialized Homes

Includes such institutions as homes for handicapped (e.g., Misericordia Homes), youth homes (e.g., Maryville, Mercy Boys and Girls, Homes), homes for battered women, drug rehab centers, homes for unwed mothers, etc.

Superior

The head of a religious order or congregation. He or she may be the head of a province, or an individual house.

Synod

A gathering of designated officials and representatives of a church, that has legislative and policy-making powers.

1. Synod of Bishops

The Synod of Bishops is a consultative body, unless explicitly stated otherwise by His Holiness, expressing the communion of the hierarchy. A synod of bishops meets in general assembly, either in "Ordinary" or "Extraordinary" session, when the matter for treatment concerns the whole Church and in "Special Assembly" when the matter deals directly with a definite region or regions.

2. Synod of Oriental Churches

The synods of the Oriental Churches enjoy various prerogatives including the right to elect bishops, regulate discipline and exercise pastoral authority in their respective churches.

3. Diocesan Synod

A diocesan synod is an expression of the communion of the particular church. A diocesan synod enjoys the participation of priests, women and men religious and laypersons; the bishop is the sole legislator.

Territorial Sees

Dioceses located on territory of the United States, but are members of episcopal conferences other than the United States Conference of Catholic Bishops.

Theologate

An institution which provides the last four years of study for candidates for the priesthood.

Titular See

A former diocese which no longer physically or geographically exists. Titular Sees are given as an honorary title to certain bishop not serving as a chief pastor of a diocese, i.e., auxiliary bishops, papal representatives, and bishops of the Roman Curia.

Tribunal

A tribunal (court) is the name given to the person or persons who exercise the Church's judicial powers. By its very nature, this procedure involves the determination of a legal controversy. A major concern of tribunals is conducting the process leading to the dissolution or annulment of marriages. In ecclesiastical matters, definite procedural norms for conducting a trial are found in the Code of Canon Law to settle disputes. There are various grades of tribunals, including diocesan tribunals, the first court of trial for most cases; regional and metropolitan tribunals, located in an archdiocese, the appellate court for all cases tried within the province; and the tribunals of the Holy See, which act as the Church's central appellate court, try cases reserved to the Holy See, deal with questions of procedure and jurisdiction of the other courts, and act as the Church's supreme court.

United States Conference of Catholic Bishops

The United States Conference of Catholic Bishops is a permanent institute composed of Catholic bishops of the United States of America in and through which the bishops exercise in a communal or collegial manner the pastoral mission entrusted to them by the Lord Jesus of sanctification, teaching, and leadership, especially by devising forms and methods of the apostolate suitably adapted to the circumstances of the times. Such exercise is intended to offer appropriate assistance to each bishop in fulfilling his particular ministry in the local Church, to effect a commonality of ministry addressed to the people of the United States of America, and to foster and express communion with the Church in other nations within the Church universal, under the leadership of its chief pastor, The Pope.

Vicar

The appointment of a priest or a bishop as an episcopal vicar is an option given to a diocesan bishop when he needs a deputy for governing a specific territory within the diocese, a group of persons or a specific rite, or a type of apostolic work within the diocese.

By Church law, the diocesan bishop is the judge of all cases in the diocesan tribunal of first trial. He must appoint a priest with ordinary power to judge cases not reserved to the bishop himself. This priest must have a graduate degree in canon law. He is called the judicial vicar, and is sometimes referred to as the chief judge or officialis. He may be given another priest as an assistant with the title of adjutant judicial vicar.

A bishop or priest appointed to participate in the executive (administrative) governance of the diocese with executive jurisdiction as a deputy of the diocesan bishop is a vicar general. The appointment of a vicar general is mandatory for every diocese. This office is designed to facilitate and unify diocesan administration.

Vicar for Religious

A priest appointed by a bishop to act as his representative in dealing with the religious communities in his diocese.

PART I

Hierarchy of the Catholic Church

The Hierarchy, as the supreme governing body of the Catholic Church, consists of the Roman Pontiff, the successor of Peter, and the Bishops joined together with him and never without him (canons 330,331,336) in one apostolic college to provide for the common good of the Church. The Roman Pontiff in the exercise of his office is assisted by the College of Cardinals, and further by the departments also called "dicasteries" of the Roman Curia. The Bishops, of whom some bear the titles of Patriarch and Archbishop, are united with the Roman Pontiff in the governance of the whole Church; the Bishops, when assigned to particular Sees, are individually responsible for the teaching, sanctification and governance of their particular Church. Apostolic Vicars and Prefects together with certain Abbots and other Prelates are also joined in this work.

HIS HOLINESS THE POPE

Bishop of Rome and Vicar of Jesus Christ,
Successor of St. Peter, Prince of the Apostles,
Supreme Pontiff of the Universal Church.
Primate of Italy.
Archbishop and Metropolitan of the Roman Province,
Sovereign of Vatican City State.
Servant of the Servants of God

Benedict XVI

JOSEPH RATZINGER

The present successor of St. Peter was born in Marktl am Inn, Diocese of Passau, April 16, 1927; ordained Priest, June 29, 1951; appointed Archbishop of Munchen und Freising March 25, 1977 and consecrated May 28, 1977; Proclaimed and created Cardinal June 27, 1977. Elected Pope, April 19, 2005; installed April 24, 2005.

VATICAN CITY

Vatican City is the smallest state in the world, occupying 108.7 acres, of which about one third is covered with buildings and is situated on the right side of the Tiber River. Vatican City has territory, population, and sovereignity. This territory, limited as it is, suffices to guarantee the spiritual and temporal independence needed for the exercise of the Holy See's spiritual mission. In 1870 the Kingdom of Italy seized all Vatican possessions which for several centuries had constituted the papal temporal domain. But even after 1870 the Holy See continued to regard itself as a separate entity in international law, and was recognized as such by numerous states with which it retained normal diplomatic relations. After long discussions the Holy See and the then Kingdom of Italy signed the Lateran Pacts on February 11, 1929, so that the complete and independent authority of the Vatican State was and is recognized by the Italian state

The Sovereign of this small state is His Holiness, the Pope

The government presently is administered by a Pontifical Commission of which His Eminence Edmund Casimir Cardinal Szoka is President.

THE COLLEGE OF CARDINALS

The Cardinals constitute a special college and they assist the Roman Pontiff collegially when they are called together to deal with questions of major importance; they do so individually when they assist the Pope especially in the daily care of the universal Church by means of the different offices which they perform (canons 349-350). The Cardinals who are under eighty years of age elect his successor

The College of Cardinals is divided into three ranks: Cardinal-Bishops, Cardinal-Priests, and Cardinal-Deacons. The College of Cardinals, when complete formerly consisted of 70 members: 6 Cardinal Bishops, 50 Cardinal Priests and 14 Cardinal Deacons, but the late Pontiffs, Pope John XXIII and Pope Paul VI enlarged the College of Cardinals. At the moment the maximum number of Cardinal electors (those under 80 years of age) must not exceed 120

The Cardinal Bishops (except the Patriarch-Cardinals of the Oriental Rites), have as Titular Sees the Suburban Sees of Rome, which are: Porto Santa Rufina, Albano, Palestrina, Sabina, Frascati, Velletri, Segni. The Cardinal Dean has united to his See the See of Ostia. The Cardinal Priests take their title from the Titular Churches to which they are appointed: the Cardinal Deacons are appointed to other Churches called Deaconries. The first Cardinal Bishop is Dean; the first Cardinal Priest is First Priest; and the first Cardinal Deacon is First Deacon of the Sacred College. The Dean has the right of ordaining the new Pope if he is not already a bishop; the First Deacon has the right of proclaiming him and investing him with the sacred Pallium. On the death of the Pontiff, the Cardinal Camerlengo has the Administration of the affairs of the Holy See Sometimes the Roman Pontiff promotes a person to the dignity of Cardinal but does not make public his name and keeps it in pectore. Upon the publication of his name, this Cardinal enjoys his right of precedence from the day on which his name was reserved in pectore by the Pope (cfr. Can. 351¶ 3).

The Roman Curia

The present norms regarding the Roman Curia were publicly announced June 28, 1988, in the Pastor Bonus - Constitutio Apostolica de Romana Curia, and published in A.A.S. LXXX/1988, Commentarium Officiale; pp. 841-934. The Supreme Pontiff usually conducts business of the universal Church by means of the Roman Curia, which fulfills its duty in his name and by his authority for the good and the service of the Churches; it consists of the Secretariat of State or the Papal Secretariat, congregations, tribunals and other institutions, whose structure and competency are defined in special law (can. 360). The Roman curia is the complex of departments and institutes which assist the Roman Pontiff in the exercise of his supreme pastoral function for the good and service of the universal Church and of the particular churches, by which the unity of faith and communion of the people of God is strengthened and the mission is promoted which is proper to the Church in the world.

I. THE SECRETARIAT OF STATE TO HIS HOLINESS

The Secretariat of State

The Secretariat of State is the dicastery of the Roman Curia which works most closely with the Supreme Pontiff in the exercise of his universal mission (Pastor Bonus, Art. 39). The Secretariat of State is presided over by a Cardinal who assumes the title of Secretary of State. As the Pope's first Collaborator in the governance of the universal Church, the Cardinal Secretary of State is the one primarily responsible for the diplomatic and political activity of the Holy See, in some circumstances representing the person of the Supreme Pontiff himself.

The Secretariat of State includes two sections, namely: the First Section that is headed by an Archbishop, the Substitute for General Affairs, assisted by a Prelate, the Assessor for General Affairs; and the Second Section of the Secretariat of State headed by an Archbishop, the Secretary for Relations with States, aided by a Prelate, the Under-Secretary for Relations with States, and assisted by Cardinals and Bishops.

Secretary of State: His Eminence Angelo Cardinal Sodano.

Office: Apostolic Palace, 00120 Vatican City State, Europe. Tel: 06-69.88.39.13; Fax: 06-69.88.52.55.

By the name of department (dicasteria) is understood: the congregations, tribunals, councils and offices, namely the Apostolic Camera, the Administration of the Patrimony of the Apostolic See, and the Prefecture of Economic Affairs of the Holy See. The departments are juridically equal among themselves. Attached to the institutes of the Roman Curia are the Prefecture of the Papal Household and the Office of Liturgical Celebrations of the Supreme Pontiff.

The Congregation for the Doctrine of the Faith

The proper function of the Congregation on the Doctrine of the Faith is to promote and safeguard the doctrine of faith and morals in the whole Catholic world; therefore, those things belong to it which touch this matter in any way. Fulfilling the function of promoting doctrine, it fosters studies in order that the understanding of the faith might grow and that a response can be prepared under the light of faith for new questions arising from developments in science and human culture. It is a help to bishops, whether individually or gathered in assemblies, in the exercise of the function by which they are constituted authentic teachers and doctors of the faith as well as the office by which they are held to safeguard and promote the integrity of that faith. This Sacred Congregation reproves doctrines opposed to the principles of the faith after the interested Bishops of a region have been heard. It studies the books referred to it and, if necessary, reproves them after the author has been heard and has had an opportunity to defend himself and after the Ordinary has been forewarned. It also examines whatever concerns "the privilege of the faith" whether in law and in fact. It is competent to pass judgement on errors about the faith according to the norms of an ordinary process. It safeguards the dignity of the sacrament of Penance. The Congregation proceeds administratively or judicially according to the nature of the question to be treated.

Prefect: His Eminence William J. Cardinal Levada.

It attends to the preparation of whatever documents the Holy Father entrusts to it. It enacts the provisions for appointments within the Roman Curia and keeps custody of the Lead Seal and the Fisherman's Ring. It has responsibility for the Holy See's diplomatic relations with States, including the establishing of Concordats or similar agreements; for the Holy See's presence in international organizations and conferences; in special circumstances, by order of the Supreme Pontiff and in consultation with the competent dicasteries of the Curia, provides for appointments to particular Churches, and for their establishment or modification; in close collaboration with the Congregation for Bishops, it attends to the appointment of Bishops in countries which have entered into treaties or agreements with the Holy See in accordance with the norms of international law.

The Catholic Church in the United States

The organizational structure of the Catholic Church in the United States consists of 33 Provinces with as many Archdioceses (Metropolitan Sees); 149 Suffragan Sees (Dioceses); The Military Archdiocese; four Eastern-Rite jurisdictions immediately subject to the Holy See in Rome. The Eparchies of St. Maron (Maronites), Newton (Melkites), St. Thomas the Apostle of Detroit (Chaldeans) and St. George Martyr of Canton, Ohio (Romanians), St. Thomas of Chicago of the Syro-Malabarians. Each of these jurisdictions is under the direction of an Archbishop and Bishop called an Ordinary, who has apostolic responsibility and authority for the pastoral service of the people in his care.

The structure includes the territorial episcopal conference known as the United States Conference of Catholic Bishops. In and through this body, which is strictly ecclesiastical and has defined juridical authority, the Bishops exercise their collegiate pastorate over the Church in the entire country.

Related to the USCCB is the civil corporation and operational secretariat through which the Bishops, in cooperation with other members of the Church, act on a wider-than-ecclesiastical scale for the good of the Church and society in the United States.

In the United States, Catholic Relief Services (CRS) works with Catholics to connect them to the poor overseas, which we've been doing since 1943. Through our outreach programs, we help Americans recognize how the choices they make—as citizens and consumers—affect those in need around the world. Our programs and resources respond to our Catholic call to live in solidarity—as one human family—across borders, over oceans, and through differences in language, culture and economic condition.

United States Conference of Catholic Bishops

Address—3211 Fourth St., N.E., Washington, DC 20017-1194. Tel: 202-541-3000; Web Site: www.usccb.org.

The United States Conference of Catholic Bishops is a permanent institute composed of Catholic bishops of the United States of America in and through which the bishops exercise in a communal or collegial manner the pastoral mission entrusted to them by the Lord Jesus of sanctification, teaching, and leadership, especially by devising forms and methods of the apostolate suitably adapted to the circumstances of the times. Such exercise is intended to offer appropriate assistance to each bishop in fulfilling his particular ministry in the local Church, to effect a commonality of ministry addressed to the people of the United States of America, and to foster and express communion with the Church in other nations within the Church universal, under the leadership of its chief pastor, the Pope.

Catholic Relief Services-USCC the official overseas relief and development agency of U.S. Catholic community is a separately incorporated organization of the U.S. Catholic Conference of Catholic Bishops.
CRS was founded in 1943 by the bishops of the United States to assist the poor and disadvantaged outside this country. The fundamental motivating force in all activities of CRS is the Gospel of Jesus Christ as it pertains to the alleviation of human suffering, the development of people and the fostering of charity and justice in the world.
CRS reaches out to people in more than 80 countries and territories around the world with programs in emergency response, agriculture, health, HIV/AIDS, microfinance, peace building and safety net programming. The core of the agency's work is to honor the dignity of the human person, and to work for a world in which all flourish in accordance with that dignity.
Domestically, CRS works with local dioceses and parishes to engage Catholics in the United States and help them grow in solidarity with the poor overseas. CRS sponsors education programs (like Operation Rice Bowl and Food Fast), diocese-to-diocese partnership projects and trips for educators that allow them to witness the needs overseas and to see first hand how CRS is helping the poorest of the poor.
In fiscal year 2001, CRS' programming had a total value of $344 million dollars.

The mission of the National Catholic Conference for Total Stewardship (NCCTS) is to initiate in dioceses and parishes the concept of total stewardship through a pastoral process called Celebrating Life as a Catholic Christian (CLCC). The concept joins the three basic elements of the bible, Evangelization, Discipleship and Service, and through the CLCC process presents them as a single unit not as separate ministries. The process first updates active church-going Catholics in sound catechetics and eucharistic spirituality. At the same time the process prepares and motivates them to reach out to lapsed, non-regular church-going Catholics making person-to-person contact with them in their homes. They are invited to join a Small Ecclesial Faith Community (SEFC) in the parish. Active parishoners in SEFC's constitute a welcoming environment for those in need of returning to the faith. In them they experience Catholic fellowship, inter-personal sharing, communal and personal prayer and study official church teachings. Through the CLCC process returnees are systematically formed in doctrine and spirituality for re-entering the Church, for encountering Christ in the sacraments, for enjoying "communion" with all Catholics and for Celebrating Life as Catholic Christians both in vocation and mission.
